

Romania: Training needed to accommodate local diversity

36 representatives from local authorities and decentralized government institutions from 6 counties in north-western Romania completed 2 training sessions organized by the Ethnocultural Diversity Resource Center (EDRC) aimed at improving local authority awareness of ethnic minority needs and the instruments available to address these needs.

The sessions covered legislation on minority discrimination and protection and principles of good governance and highlighted the diversity of experience in public administration, indicating the need for more extensive training.
